

Our Trails

The Baileys Trail System is a professionally-built, mountain bike optimized trail system on the Wayne National Forest in Southeast Ohio. To date, 26 miles of the planned 88-mile system have been constructed.

When complete, the Baileys will be the longest purpose-built contiguous trail system east of the Mississippi River.

Your Impact

The mission of the Baileys Trail System is to integrate conservation, outdoor recreation, and economic development in a way that strengthens and inspires communities in Southeast Ohio.

To complete the remaining 62 miles of trail, sponsorship opportunities are available to engage our stakeholders and to provide financial support over the next 3 years of development. Support generated will supplement grant and other public funding for construction and management of the Baileys Trail System.

Lasting Legacy

Southeast Ohio was instrumental in powering the nation into the modern age through coal mining, timber harvest, and brick production, bringing prosperity and pride to the region for over a century. In recent decades, these extractive endeavors have steadily declined, leaving a legacy of environmental degradation and generational poverty in their wake. Steady, well-paying jobs were terminated with the subsequent bust of industry. Mine lands that once served as gateways to wealth, now pollute the land with acidic drainage. Entire communities gradually vanished and many of those that remain struggle to find new purpose in the Appalachian foothills they call 'home.'

Conservation & Education

The Baileys Trail System has redefined what it means to be a natural resource. Through the construction of these trails, abandoned mine lands within the Wayne National Forest are being identified and remediated. The trails serve as arteries into natural spaces, providing opportunities to connect local communities with the lush environment and rich history that surround them. Through educational programming for both children and adults, the trail system cultivates a lifelong appreciation of the natural world.

Health & Wellness

With 88 miles of planned multi-use trails, the Baileys offers world-class biking, hiking, and running opportunities within economically distressed communities that currently face serious challenges such as obesity, diabetes, and opioid addiction. The trails provide access to ample physical and mental health benefits, and are a source of local pride in communities that have historically been overlooked.

Economic Development & Tourism

In just its first year of opening, the Baileys Trail System has already ushered thousands of visitors to Southeast Ohio. With trailheads strategically positioned in small rural communities, infrastructure improvements are underway to accommodate the influx of guests now frequenting the region. Locally-owned businesses have begun to spring up all around the trail system, including cafes and short-term vacation rentals, bringing permanent jobs and internship opportunities. Statewide races and large public events are expected to attract thousands of visitors to the communities that surround the Baileys Trail System.
